

Dr. Ann's webinars are exploding with energy, inspiration, and the indispensable, no-nonsense guidance your employees need to put them on the fast track to better health.

Based on the number of employees, an organization can purchase either a 12-month or 3-month viewing license that grants unlimited employee access to view the recorded webinars over the organization's intranet.

To provide access, an organization simply places an embed code for the webinar video directly onto the company intranet site.

This allows for instant group or individual viewings.

The Happiness Diet Series

Brain health is everything! In this cutting edge and fascinating webinar, Dr. Ann guides you through all the dietary strategies for achieving and maintaining optimal brain structure and function. Whether your goals are lowering stress, boosting happiness, avoiding depression, or unleashing your brain's full intellectual potential – this program is for you.

Because the brain is the most demanding, discriminating, and fastidious of all organs when it comes to nutrition, if you learn to maximize your brain's nutrition needs, the remainder of the body is more than taken care of. That is a huge bonus that comes with this program!

Webinar Best Practices

To optimize Dr. Ann's webinars for motivating and educating your employees, we suggest the following best practices:

- Take advantage of group viewings whenever possible. Allowing your employees to watch the webinars together leverages the positive spirit and energy of “group dynamics” and enhances comradery, while fostering a culture of wellness in your workplace.
- Be sure you appropriately introduce Dr. Ann to the webinar viewers prior to the broadcast. Knowledge of her reputation and credibility as an esteemed expert in nutrition and wellness who is fun, totally real, and contagiously inspirational will increase the audience's receptiveness and interest. (We will provide a short bio as well as a brief Dr. Ann promo video for this purpose.)
- Encourage employees to watch the webinars on their own repeatedly as needed for additional motivation and reinforcement. The bottom line: the more they watch them- the better!
- To optimize engagement, be aggressive in promoting the webinars. Take advantage of every avenue at your disposal (email, social media, printed flyers, calendars, employee newsletters, etc.) and of course incentivize viewing as your organization sees fit.
- Lunch and learns are an ideal context for group viewings. If you take advantage of this popular educational forum, be sure that the lunch you serve is consistent with the information in the webinars. A free lunch can be a great incentive to bring employees in!
- Be sure to make the companion handout(s) for the webinar easily accessible for your employees. For group viewings, having them pre-printed and available in their seats is optimal. If they will be posted electronically, be sure to let everyone know exactly where they can be accessed.

Webinar Best Practices

- Use Dr. Ann's Eat Right for Life books (all available to employers through WELCOA for a steep discount) as the ideal incentive gift or the perfect companion "take away" to reinforce the webinar content. Dr. Ann's books and webinars are synergistic with one another. She has specifically constructed both to be used in concert.
- Encourage your employees to utilize the full suite of free educational resources on Dr. Ann's website, especially her e-newsletter and her Make It Happen Monday Video Tips. They will all serve to further your employee's learning and understanding, keep them motivated, and remind them of Dr. Ann's encouraging voice.
- Keep in mind that individuals viewing the video modules have complete control over the viewing experience. They can start, stop, and replay the video modules wherever and whenever they want.
- If you want to track your individual employee viewings, it is easy for your IT personnel to install a sign-in box on the webinar viewing page for this purpose.
